

“Everything we do in the Christian life is easier than prayer.”

“Our natural desire to pray comes from Creation. We are made in the image of God.
Our inability to pray comes from the Fall.
Evil has marred the image.
We want to talk to God
but can't.”

“It is remarkable that in all his writings Paul’s prayers for his friends contains no appeals for changes in their circumstances ... Paul sees fuller knowledge of God as a more critical thing to receive than a change of circumstances.”

“In times of crisis, the peripheral and non-essential has a way of dropping off, leaving one with what is central and essential, with those things that matter most.”
